How has the geography of Africa impacted its development

- Northern Africa has the Sahara Desert. The Sahara Desert splits Africa into mostly Muslim northern Africa and mostly black southern Africa. South of the Sahara is known as sub-sahara.
- The middle part of Africa has heavy jungles. Eastern Africa has grasslands called Savannahs. The Nile River runs through Africa. Southern Africa was rich in diamonds.
- Africa’s geography made it difficult for European nations to take over until the increase in technology after the Industrial Revolution.
- Africa’s geography also led to the creation of thousands of different tribes with different religions and languages. This difference is called tribalism. It has been hard for them to unify.

Why were the Ancient African kingdoms wealthy?

- Ancient West African nations became rich through the trade of gold (found in the Savannahs) and salt (found in the Sahara).
- These kingdoms were rich and prosperous civilizations.
- Ghana became known for the gold trade
- Mali became a Muslim center for learning with a capital at Timbuktu
- Songhai expanded trade to Asia and Europe.
What are some examples of Cultural Diffusion in Africa?

- Islam spread from the Middle East throughout Africa and often replaced tribal religions, especially north of the Sahara Desert.
- African explorer Ibn Battuta traveled the world and spread African culture through Cultural diffusion.
- Mali emperor Mansa Musa traveled to Mecca and also brought ideas back and forth.

How did the slave trade affect Africa?

- Muslim traders began slave trade as early as the 12th century, but in the 16th century, slaves began to be transferred to the Americas as labor for new sugar and tobacco plantations.
- Millions of Slaves were transferred to the Americas causing a disruption and fighting among the tribes.
- The slave trade was ended during the Age of Enlightenment.

How did Imperialism affect Africa?

- Some tribes like the Zulu in South Africa tried to fight imperialist nations like Europe, but most were not strong enough.
- Scramble for Africa occurred when European nations rushed to get land for themselves.
- Solution to the Scramble occurred at the Berlin Conference where the land was divided peacefully, but without reason among European nations, but with no input from the Africans. This increased problems among the tribes.
- Belgium Congo was treated the worst. Some British colonies gained western medicines and education.
- British citizen Cecil Rhodes helped create Rhodesia.
What happened to Africa after independence?

- Most African nations were controlled by Europe through 1945. Today, the continent of Africa is home to 53 independent countries.
- After World War II, African nations began to push for independence. They were supported by the United Nations Charter that encouraged self determination.
- Some African nation, like the Algerians fought France for independence, others like Kenya got it peacefully.
- Jomo Kenyatta got independence for Kenya. Tried to promote Pan Africanism or a united Africa but he did not succeed.
- Africa became involved in Cold War conflict. Some nations like Angola adopted Soviet/Communist support and other nations like Zaire adopted US/Capitalist support. Others adopted a non-alignment policy and didn’t take either side.

What racial issues affect the country of South Africa?

- The country of South Africa was founded by the Dutch but the discovery of gold in the late 1800’s led to British victory in the Boer Wars and they took control. White South Africans were called Afrikaners.
- White South Africans began a strict policy of racial segregation known as Apartheid. It eventually included separate schools, towns and jobs. Black south Africans had to carry passes and follow curfews. They had no right to vote or change laws.
- Nelson Mandela spent 28 years in jail as a symbol of the movement to end apartheid. It ended in 1993 and Nelson Mandela was elected the first black South African president.

What problems are facing Africa today?

- Africa is continuing to have problems. The nations of Africa are very poor and live in poverty.
- Disease like AIDS have killed millions.
- Drought and overgrazing has led to desertification and farmland becomes desert.
- Some people still identify more strongly with their tribe and not with their nation. They still look to traditional ways and not toward modernization.
- Much of Africa relies on subsistence agriculture, growing only enough food to support their families with nothing left to sell.
